THE TWENTIETH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

“I have come to light a fire on earth.” Jesus does just that when he touches any human being. He ignites us to live fully, he pushes us into the rapids of divine love. Christianity is not to be a dull religion. Nothing could be further from Jesus’ intention. His own life shows this. He constantly met new and interesting characters (from wealthy tax collectors to lepers). He was faced with every kind of human problem. He enjoyed banquets and fasted for weeks in the desert. He asked little children to come into his presence and at other times he had fierce battles with the Pharisees. In every situation, the presence of God touched lives. We are now his followers and do a disservice if we turn Christianity into a dull, routine, a set of rules that contains people but does not inspire them. With Christ, let us echo the first line of the Gospel today in our hearts and in our actions: “We have come to light a fire on the earth.” We, too, carry the presence of the living God to the street corners, the characters, the problems and the children we meet.

Twentieth Sunday in Ordinary Time:
A Family Perspective

Today Jesus warns us his Word will create conflict between parents and children. In a permissive society which advocates individualism and consumerism, parents must continue to teach and live the gospel values of respect, service to others, forgiveness, generosity and compassion. A Christian family is a countercultural family.
