THE THIRTY-SECOND SUNDAY OF ORDINARY TIME

The word of God today urges us to seek wisdom, a wisdom in daily living. We need two kinds of wisdom: one about life itself and another about how to live our specific vocation and our occupation in a way that is totally in keeping with our Christian beliefs. A seeker of wisdom is open to new discoveries, new truths. In that effort we have the possibility of hearing the voice of God as it is revealed in a particular happening. Jesus urges us to keep awake; do not go through life in every person, situation and encounter of life.

Preparing for the New Translation of the Mass: What will be happening with the prayers? On November 27, 2011, the First Sunday of Advent, all the English speaking Roman Catholic Communities will begin using the new translation of The Roman Missal, Third Edition. The Roman Missal is the source of all the prayers used during the Eucharistic Liturgy, the Mass. The First (1974) and the Second (1985) Editions were marked by a style of English that was easy to understand, but the translation of the original Latin texts were not accurate. The Third Edition makes use of a more formal style of English. The translations are more literal renderings of the original Latin texts so that their meaning is more accurately expressed in English and all the various languages prayed throughout the world. The words that we pray at Mass express our beliefs; therefore, it is important that the translation captures and express these beliefs clearly.
